

MORNING LEADER.

THURSDAY MORNING, AUG. 10, 1888.

Republican Nominations.

For Supreme Judge,
WILLIAM F. PECK, of Scioto.
For Controller,
WILLIAM B. THRALL, of Franklin.
For Attorney General,
CHRISTOPHER P. WOLCOTT, of Summit.
For Member of the Public Works,
JOHN L. MARTIN, of Butler.
For Member of Congress,
EDWARD WADE.

The Atlantic Telegraph.

By the report last night it will be seen that the Atlantic line is to be closed to all messages except governmental till the first of September. Mr. Field reports the Atlantic Telegraph a perfect success, and has recommended the preparation of a second cable to meet the demands of business.

Congressional Nominations.

The Republicans of the Eleventh Congressional District have nominated the Hon. N. H. Van Vorhees, of Athens County, for Congress. The nominee is the editor of the Athens Messenger, a man of fine talents, tried integrity, was formerly an active Whig, and was the excellent Speaker of the Republican House of Representatives two years ago. He will do honor to Ohio. The present Republican incumbent, Mr. Horton, declined a re-nomination on account of his private business. The Democrats have nominated C. D. Martin, of Fairfield.

The Republicans of the Seventh District have nominated the Hon. Thomas Corwin for Congress, on the eighteenth ballot of the Convention. The district is composed of the Counties of Warren, Clinton, Madison, Fayette, and Green. The candidates before the Convention were Mr. Corwin, of Warren, Harlan, of Green, and Harrison, of Madison. Mr. Denny, editor of the Lebanon Star, was not a candidate, his name having been withdrawn from the canvass. Mr. Harlan is the present incumbent. The first vote stood Corwin 27, Harlan 39, Harrison 10. The 18th ballot, Corwin 44, Harlan 35, Harrison 7. A motion to make the nomination unanimous received a few negative votes from Green County, and the Convention adjourned with three cheers for Tom Corwin.

The contest in the Convention was warm. The objection urged against Mr. Corwin was that he had not borne the brunt of the Republican fight heretofore, though Col. Hopkins, of Warren county, in presenting the name of Mr. Corwin stated, by authority, that he stood on the Philadelphia platform. After the nomination Mr. Corwin was called out at the Morrow House by the delegates. After expressing his gratification to his old constituents and their descendants for their renewed expression of confidence in him, Mr. C. remarked substantially as follows:

"He said he was very well aware of the stormy times that many people anticipated would have to be encountered by a representative in the next Congress, but he recited the idea of a dissolution of the Union, saying that the Democratic party had received such a rebuff by the defeat of LeCompton, that the South could not fail to be convinced of the will of the people of the North. He thought generous and magnanimous persuasion, and mild conciliatory measures, now that there had been no secession, would be the best policy of the North. In allusion to Kansas he said he thought it would have been wise in the Democratic party to have acquiesced and acknowledged they had committed wrong, confessing to the people and asking to be forgiven; but instead of that they had threatened to commit suicide by endeavoring to persuade the people that because Kansas had refused to come into the Union shackled by the chains of slavery, therefore she does not want to come at all. God help them, said he, if they take that position when Kansas presents herself with a free Constitution, and they refuse her admission, if they choose to blind themselves not to recall the pen law which they framed to prevent Kansas coming in except as a slave State, that is the last of the Democratic party in Ohio. Not a man in America—no, not a single man, believes that Kansas does not want to come in."

Senator Douglas Excited.

Douglas is losing his temper, a sign that his case is becoming desperate even in Illinois. In a speech at Bardonia, on the 11th, he pronounced an assertion of Mr. Lincoln an "infamous lie," and said of Senator Trumbull, whose speech at Chicago had just reached him—"The miserable, craven-hearted scoundrel, he would rather have both ears cut off than use that language in my presence, where I could call him to account." Trumbull's truths must have galled terribly. Again Mr. Douglas said of Lincoln and Trumbull both:

"I will retract their falsehoods as they deserve, and I will meet the responsibility. 'Voice'—That is the talk, notwithstanding Mr. Lincoln's exploits with broad swords, on his trip to Missouri with Gen. Shields. (Loud applause and laughter.) But I will not make a blackguard of myself by imitating the course they have pursued against me."

Pittsburgh and Cleveland R. R.

CHARGE.—Adrian Stone, we learn from the Wheeling Intelligencer, has been elected President of the Pittsburgh and Cleveland Railroad, vice James Farmer, late incumbent. The old Superintendent, Secretary, etc., were re-appointed. The road is under the control of Bond Holders, who at present control its actions—financially more particularly.—Cincinnati Com., 18th.

The above news from abroad is bogus, every line. Mr. Stone has been elected President of the Cleveland and Erie Road—Mr. Farmer is daily discharging the duties of President of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh—there has been no Superintendent appointed since the resignation of Mr. Durand—there has been no re-appointment of Secretary, Auditor, etc., of late—and the road is not "under the control of the Bond Holders." How so many errors could creep into one paragraph and into the Commercial, is pasting strange.

Third Excursion to Put-in-Bay.

Another Pic-Nic Excursion to Put-in-Bay is on foot, to take place on the 24th inst. The Fire Department of Detroit and citizens will come down to the Bay on the Ocean, and it is expected that the Fire Departments of Toledo and Sandusky will join in the fête. The May Queens, Capt. Viger, has been chartered to take up a load from Cleveland, and will leave at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 24th. A gay and good time is anticipated.

COLUMBIANA COUNTY.—The popular vote system prevails in making nominations in Columbiana County. The Republican Convention met at New Lisbon on the 16th, and upon counting the returns it was found that Mr. Lodge was nominated for Auditor, Mr. Fares for Commissioner, and Mr. Fulton for Infantry Director. For Common Pleas Judge of the district composed of the counties of Stark, Columbiana, and Carroll, 23 of the Columbiana delegates elected are in favor of Mr. Church, and 7 for Mr. Tripp. For Congress, Mr. Bingham received 14 townships, and Mr. Eckley 4. Mr. Walworth declined being a candidate before the election of delegates was held in Columbiana.

Cuyahoga County Historical Society.—Interview with Capt. Stanton Sholes. We are indebted to the kindness of Secretary BARN, for permission to publish the following reminiscences of Cleveland in 1813, from the pen of a venerable citizen of Ohio, himself the relic of a generation having but few representatives among the living. Although eighty-seven years of age, the old-fashioned, plain manuscript of Capt. Sholes was put to the blush almost of the modern educated who furnish almost illegible scrawls for the press; and his mind is a perfect store-house of facts, incidents, and personal adventures of the past and present century. In person he is tall, erect, and dignified, and in manner a gentleman of the old school. A native of Connecticut, in vigorous manhood Capt. Sholes became a citizen of Western Pennsylvania, and a defender of the Lake frontier in the War of 1812—services which were properly acknowledged at the last session of Congress by the passage of a special bounty act in his behalf. After the war Capt. S. engaged in mercantile pursuits, and considerably over a quarter of a century ago was a successful merchant in Medina, Elms, and Amherst, Lorain county, where he built one of the pleasantest of rural homes. Capt. Sholes subsequently became a pioneer settler in the far West of the Mississippi Valley, and from thence returned to Franklin County, Ohio. For a number of years past he has been a respected citizen of Columbus, and in the enjoyment of a competence, and the society of a companion younger in years who ministers with a wife's devotion to his every want, the still active veteran reads of the present and ponders and talks of the past, resignedly awaiting the final summons all must obey.

Capt. Sholes, it was recently stated by the Columbus Fair, is one of the few survivors of the party who accompanied Robert Fulton on his first steam vessel trip on the Hudson. The other survivors are reported to be the Dean of Ripon in England, and John Q. Wilson, of Albany. At the celebration of the anniversary of the Fort Griswold massacre a year or two since Capt. S. visited Connecticut to attend it, and was among the "observed of the observers" on the interesting occasion.

JOHN BARN, Esq., Secretary of the Cuyahoga County Historical Society.
DEAR SIR:—A compliance with your request will carry me back half a century. At this time of my life (87) and almost blind, oft my right hand refuses its office, yet my memory holds quite good. Such matters as memory has in keeping, with a trembling hand, shall be faithfully given to the honorable Society.

ORDERED TO CLEVELAND.
About the 31st of May, 1813, I received orders from the War Department to march my Company, then at Beavertown, Pennsylvania, to Cleveland, Ohio, to aid in the defense of the frontier, and to establish a military post on the Lake shore. I arrived at Cleveland with my Company on the 10th, and there found Major Jessup and two or three companies of militia, called out some months before for the defense of that point. I halted my Company between Maj. Carter's and the house of Mr. Wallace, and was met by Gov. Meigs, of the State, who gave me a most cordial welcome, as did also the citizens. Gov. M. took me to a place where my Company could pitch their tents.

CLEVELAND IN 1813.
I was now in Cleveland in obedience to orders. I found no place of defense, no hospital, but a forest of large timber, mostly chestnut, standing between the Lake and the Lake road. There was a road that turned off between Mr. Perry's and Maj. Carter's, that led to the Point, which was the only place that the Lake could be seen from these buildings. The buildings of this little cluster were all of wood, and I think none were painted. There were a few families further back from the Lake road, among them L. Johnson and Judge Kingbury. The widow Walworth, or Ashbel, her son, kept the Postoffice. Those that lived on the Lake road were Maj. Carter, Mr. S. Perry, Mr. Wallace, and a few others.

RICK AND WOUNDED.—HOSPITAL REJECTED.
On my arrival at Cleveland I found a number of sick and wounded. After Hull's surrender they had been sent to Cleveland from Detroit, and they were crowded into a log cabin, with no one to care for them. I sent one or two of my soldiers to their aid, as they had no friends with them. There were two or three good carpenters in my Company, and I set them to work to build a hospital. We very soon got up a good frame 30 by 20 feet, smoothly and tightly covered and floored with chestnut bark, with two tiers of bunks around the walls, and doors and windows, and not a nail or screw, or iron latch or hinge was used about the building. Its cost to the government was a few extra shillings. In a short time I had all the bunks stowed, and the sick and wounded in good and clean bunks to their great joy and comfort—but alas! some of them had fallen asleep.

STOCKADE WORK.—BRITISH FLEET.
I next went to work and built a small stockade fort, about fifty yards from the bank of the Lake, in the forest. The fort finished, I set the men to felling the timber along and near the bank, rolling the logs and piling the brush near the bank, to form a breastwork. On the 14th of June a part of the British fleet appeared off the mouth of the Cuyahoga, with the apparent design of landing. When they got within about half a mile of the harbor the wind died entirely away, and the vessels lay becalmed until afternoon, when a terrible thunder-storm came up and drove them from our coast, and we saw them no more as enemies. Their object was to destroy the public or government boats then built and building in the Cuyahoga river, and other government stores.

VISIT OF GEN. HARRISON.
About the middle of July, Gen. Harrison and suite paid a visit to Cleveland, and made his headquarters at Maj. Carter's. His suite were Col. Samuel Huntington, Paymaster of the Army and Ex-Governor of Ohio; Maj. George Tod, Maj. Jessup, and one or two more, including Col. Wood, who was shortly after killed in battle. He was a brave officer, Gen. Harrison, in his stay at this station, took great care to scrutinize everything that had been done for the defense of the frontier, and made his headquarters at Maj. Carter's. He was a brave officer, Gen. Harrison, in his stay at this station, took great care to scrutinize everything that had been done for the defense of the frontier, and made his headquarters at Maj. Carter's.

REVENUE AND FORT.—BY DEATH OF INDIAN.
Sometime in July I was attacked with the fever and ague. Doctor Long lived in a small house about half way from Maj. Carter's to the point, and near to my camp. One day feeling the ague coming on I stepped in to Dr. L.'s. He was not at home, and Mrs. Long seeing me shake requested me to be down on the bed. I told her I was a bed as a bed as a bed. Up stairs I went, slipped off my coat and boots, fell on the bed, and pulled the clothes over me, and as soon as the shake was off I fell fast asleep. On awaking I smelt something very sickening, and turning my face over the bed I discovered something stretched along on the floor between me and the wall. It was a human form, every bone in its place. Half stupefied by sleep and disease I gazed until I verily thought I was dead and they had buried me by the side of some one who had gone before me. Rousing from my lethargy, I found that I was alive and had been sleeping long side a dead man. I was on the lower floor in quick step, frightened and not seen, and the room I learned was the cause, and very politely apologized for my forgetfulness. The partially prepared skeleton was that of an Indian lying at Cleveland for the murder of a white man near Pipe Creek. I do not know how long it remained in that position, but it was certainly almost impossible that the Doctor caught him. At any rate, sleeping side by side by the frame of an Indian not fully decayed is not a very pleasing remembrance to carry up the journey of life.

DO NOT REMEMBER THE DEATH OF ANY CITIZEN OF CLEVELAND WHILE I WAS CAMPED WITH THEM. I have nothing more in memory about my stay there that I can raise from its long slumbers, except the Battle of the Tenth of September. I had received the order to march on the 8th to break up the camp, gather all the government boats and stores, and with my Company take them on to the mouth of Maumee River, and report to the Commander in Chief. In obedience to order I commenced the work on the 9th. The morning of the 10th of September, 1813, will long be remembered by the people of Cleveland whose ears were saluted with the thunder of cannon that were rolling down the Lake. In a short time the elements were hushed to silence. Paul upon Paul reported to us that the bloody strife was then in full blaze between the hostile fleets. The feelings of the veterans were kindled up very high for the fate of our gallant little fleet. The elements were hushed to a dead silence, the Lake was like a sheet of glass, while the bloody strife was raging on its bosom. After 12 M. the report of cannon began to be heard, and very high at intervals until about 4 P. M., when it ceased altogether. The anxiety of the listeners was worked up almost to frenzy for the fate of our little fleet commanded by the youthful Perry. I will not attempt to describe the scene, but will tell the people in plain words, with my feet of boats from the mouth of the Cuyahoga river for the Maumee, there to see the shattered fleets and the mangled combatants.

A SKIRMISH UP ON THE L. M. & C. & X. R. R.—Four freight trains left this city for Cincinnati over the L. M. & C. & X. railroad yesterday morning about the same hour. A short distance from the city a slight accident detained the second train a short time, the conductor of which immediately sent signals back for the other trains to stop; but it appears the signals were not seen, and the consequence was that the third train ran into the second, throwing several cars from the track, smashing a locomotive and several cars. We have not heard of any person being seriously injured by the accident, although it seems almost impossible that all on board should have escaped unhurt.—Columbian Statesman.

SEALED ACCIDENT.—Last Thursday, Mr. P. DeLong, of Black River, who was employed in Osquid's Steam Mill, was engaged in adjusting a belt, while the machinery was in motion, and by some means got his left arm caught between the belt and cylinder and came very near being instantly killed. By the greatest exertions he succeeded in disengaging himself from the machinery, but his arm was literally crushed. The next day it was amputated near the shoulder by Dr. Strong, and the patient is now doing well.—Elyria Dem.
